Present: 34 Great Vigor

Congratulations! There is strength and vigor in this situation - like a ram who has knocked down a fence to free himself from captivity.

This points to a time when a strong force comes into its own and achieves power.

When a leader finally comes into power, his or her personal strength usually has peaked. Great strength has been required in climbing to the mountaintop, but once at the summit, the support of others is needed to maintain position. A shift in attitude becomes necessary.

Raw strength must be tempered by wisdom; to maintain power, the strong leader must learn to give it away, to share it with others. Only then will his position be secure, for he will not only be the possessor of power, but the source of it as well.

If you find yourself in a powerful position, it is especially important to act responsibly and react with care. Power must not be allowed to degenerate into raw force which rides roughshod over everything in its path. A strong sense of responsibility to the collective good is the key to the successful exercise of power. By following what we intuitively know to be for the greater good, we avoid reckless abuses of power which in the end undermine the source of our strength.

Arrogance contains the seeds of its own undoing.

You cast several changing lines, which indicates a number of changing possibilities in the situation.

The first changing line is Line 1:

Simply possessing great personal vigor does not assure success. If you start your movement from a lowly or weak position, attempting to advance prematurely through forceful efforts will only bring misfortune. Even for those of great strength and ability, progress is achieved step by step.

The second changing line is Line 2:

The gates of good fortune are swinging open; the time has come to plunge ahead. In times of great opportunity, beware of premature celebrations. Keep your balance.

The third changing line is Line 3:

A ram crashing through a hedge gets his horns tangled up. He may be the strongest animal in the flock, but a proud, haughty ram only brings misfortune upon himself. Avoid empty displays of power or force.

A wise leader measures success in terms of finely-tuned performance, not raw power. Power is the fuel, but precision is the carburetor.

Future: 16 Enthusiasm

This hexagram represents the quality of likely opportunities and challenges arising from changes that are in process now:

Enormous creative energy is unleashed by enthusiasm. This energy is like powerful music which inspires great numbers of people, loosening old constraints and generating new opportunities. Indeed, the power of enthusiasm is best symbolized by music and dance, for it is guided more by the heart than the head. Thus, great good fortune can follow when the leader of an enthusiastic group is a person of strong character, one able to guide this positive force toward a favorable destination.

Enthusiasm within a large group generates a special kind of electricity. When a crowd is "charged," the singer scales new heights, and life becomes its own reward. For who is not in awe of thunder? And who would fail to fill his or her lungs in the aftermath of a cleansing rain?

Arouse the passionate support of others, while adjusting your ideas and plans to suit their needs. In this way you can fill your sails with the ighty wind of popular support.

To arouse others, re-double your own dedication, and dare to create an environment which is free of tension. Take joy in your work. Harness the power of song and dance.

The Angel of Faith

'I have faith that goodness and joy are mine, now and forever'

We may find, when life's trials are weighing heavily on us, that we can find the faith that all will come right. This faith sustains us through the hard times. We may sometimes stumble along and lose our way, but faith that all is ultimately for our highest good can raise us above our doubts and despair. Faith is the belief that whatever it is you are asking God to deliver is already on its way. Faith is the acceptance of uncertainty and the firm belief that all comes right in the end.

In this age of instant gratification we lack the opportunities to express our faith except when grave crisis comes along. Faith is something that only we can choose to develop for ourselves; no one can give it to us or even tell us how to cultivate it. People can tell us about it and recount their own personal experiences but essentially it comes to each of us from a deep inner connection with ourselves.

Life is really very simple when we have faith. We can follow our heart and live a committed and meaningful life in the faith that we are fulfilling a plan. We rise above our limited egos to have in the knowledge that this is a benign and loving universe and that we are a part of the catalyst which is changing the world to a better place.

Faith helps us to wait in patience for the light when we can see only the darkness in front of us. It is an essential component for life to have faith that whatever our destiny is, it is right for us. Faith is an ever deepening knowledge that we are guided, loved and protected at all times. We need only surrender to that love to let the purpose of our lives be fulfilled.

We can pray to The Angel of Faith to help us renew our faith in the process of life. It will help us to accept those things which we cannot change, as well as all that has been given us to work with and refine in our lives. Ultimately, it will carry us through rough and difficult transitions and help us to renew our love for Self and humanity. The Angel of Faith is there to help us bridge the gap between this material, worldly life and the spiritual plane.
